Vancouver Regional Transit System

Scratch-and-ride DayPasses were introduced in response to passengers who find it inconvenient to buy a regular DayPass at a SkyTrain station or SeaBus terminal. The service offered and the cost are the same.

The new pass can be purchased in advance at 7-Eleven Stores, Vancouver Ticket Outlets, Overseas Chinese Voice Outlet and many other FareSaver dealers and then used on any one chosen day before November 1. Before using, the passenger simply scratches the day and month and keeps the pass handy for inspection.

Anyone requiring further information on the Open Houses may call BC Transit's Metro Planning Department, between 8:00 a.m. and 4:00 p.m., Monday to Friday. The number is 264-5000.

Streetcars and jitneys compete on Hastings, east of Carrall.

The Buzzer: Three score years and ten

The Buzzer, brainchild of George Kidd, general manager of B.C. Electric, was born on June 2, 1916 to help streetcars in their competition with 'Jitney' operators — private citizens with cars who patrolled streetcar routes and offered rides for five cents.

The Buzzer would promote the use of streetcars by keeping people informed about service and fostering rider loyalty.

Jitney service was abolished in July, 1918, but the Buzzer continued and has been read by generations of Greater Vancouver transit riders.

The first issue was headed "Wanted — A Name" and offered to pay $15 for the best suggestion, $10 for the second best and $5 for the third best. Big money in the days when a streetcar ride was five cents.

We don't have an original report of the winning entries, but the 25th Anniversary issue, June 6, 1941, says that eleven people submitted the winning name. They were: W.J. Buckingham, Charles J. Cameron, Frank P. Downes, A.J. Harrison, Miss Kathleen M. Hartley, Mrs. G.W. Isaacs, E.J. Judd, Joseph A. Macfarlane, Mrs. J.J. Miller, Mrs. F.W. Parkin and Miss Marguerite Philip. The writer goes on to wonder how many were still in Vancouver.

In this centennial year, it would be even more interesting to know something about these people and if any of them or their families are still in Vancouver.

A few old chestnuts from the 40's

Medical professor: "Did you read that article on chiropody?"

Student: "Only the footnotes."

Fred: "Gladys celebrated her birthday last week."

Bill: "Did she take the day off?"

Fred: "The day? She took two years off."

Man jailed for assaulting operator

A passenger who tried to pay his fare with a FareSaver booklet cover and then produced a MHR pass that didn't belong to him, became very abusive, pushed the operator and tried to strike him with his fist.

The operator called a supervisor who called the police.

After failing to appear in court on an assault charge the accused was again arrested, held for eight days, tried and sentenced to a further five days in jail. He was also placed on supervised probation for one year, during which time he is not to use public transit or loiter around any BC Transit bus stop.

Timetable correction

On page 5 of the New Westminster & South Burnaby timetable, the first leave time of the 102 route from New Westminster Station (Mon.-Fri.) should read "5:52 a.m.", not 5:22 a.m.

Plan ahead — Buy ahead

Prepaid fares help speed service

With a growing demand for transit to and from Expo, passengers with prepaid fares will probably find the going a good deal easier. For them no lining up at ticket machines or being concerned about having the correct bus fare.

FareSaver tickets are purchased in books of ten and offer savings of 8.7% to 9.6%.

	Single zone	Double zone	Three zone
Book of ten	$10.50	$14.00	$20.00

FareSavers not only save money, they're convenient to buy and convenient to use.

They're available at outlets throughout Greater Vancouver — watch for the FareSaver sign.

Dropped into the farebox of a bus, they are treated as cash. Used to pay a SkyTrain or SeaBus fare, they need only be validated (dated and stamped) at a fare machine — no waiting necessary. The ticket is then retained for inspection.

Monthly FareCards

are convenient to buy and convenient to use. When boarding a bus, simply show to the operator. When boarding SkyTrain or SeaBus, walk directly to the platform or terminal — no waiting.

And the more FareCards are used, the greater the savings. Use a FareCard 50 times and save 11.5% to 20%*
Use a FareCard 60 times and save 20% to 33%*

*Local FareCards used any time. Suburban, Urban and Super FareCards used at least 40 times during peak periods.

Local FareCard.....	$46.00	Suburban FareCard	$62.00
Urban FareCard.....	$62.00	Super FareCard	$88.00
Concession FareCard.....			$27.00
